Build – a Backpack for Human Trafficking Victims
For victims of human trafficking, a backpack with new clothing, toiletries, and personal hygiene products can help take that very first step toward the long journey of healing. Many times, when police or social service agencies encounter victims, they only have the clothes they are wearing and are in need of basic personal care items. By receiving these items and experiencing the care of others, the individual’s sense of dignity, self-worth, and safety begin to be restored.
